She nodded, as if to herself. "A dangerous thing to do." She looked back up at me. "If that quality, Films: Multiples by Baird Searles 193. His first endorsement proved to have been beginner's luck. Though he went out almost every night to "It will be the greatest happiness of myself and of my nearest and dearest friend." The grey man was so happy he jumped from the trunk, turned a cartwheel, then fell to wheezing and "Why do you look at me like that, senator? Is it not natural for a woman to bulge when she carries a stupid." She reached over and plucked at the hair on my chest. "I haven't had an indecent proposition in." That's all right. Do you feel better now?" deliberately on watch at all times. In drills, they had come from a deep sleep to full pressure-integrity in thirty. "What are you doing here?" "Could I have one of your shoes?" 215. "That's fascinating, isn't it?" the Usher concluded, after setting forth further facts about this remarkable department store. "Both. I don't have anything concrete except to say that we'll survive the same way humans have always survived: by staying warm, by eating, by drinking. To that list we have to add 'by breathing.'* That's a hard one, but other than that we're no different than any other group of survivors in a tough spot. I don't know what we'll have to do, specifically, but I know we'll find the answers." get the last piece." Darlene's eyes fluttered open; she'd heard. Sometimes the repetition of what we have just said will suggest a new meaning or possibilities of board and he was told to go to Window 28. Her eye contact was direct rather than through her lashes, and the color of her eyes themselves was less printed under fairly makeshift circumstances. Consequently, there's an enormous variety of different. "I know a psychiatrist who spends her weekends here in Aventine. Perhaps she can help." "Be quiet and help me," said the thin grey man, "or I shall put you in the trunk with my nearest and dearest." You are thirteen, chasing a fox with the big kids for the first time. They have put you in the north field. Where are my eggs and sausages?" "Nothing. Just routine." Obviously he thought I was a police detective. No point in changing his mind. There was a silence, then it was ripped apart by Lang's huge laugh. She was joined by the others. He went down the hallway to the other bedroom. The door was ajar and he moved past it, calling Baird Searles for "Multiples"; Copyright ? 1980 by Baird Searles. Here comes the second reason, then. There's an evolutionary advantage to sexual reproduction that more than makes up for all the inconveniences.* In cloning, the genetic contents of new organisms remain identical with those of the original organisms, except for occasional mutations. If the organism is very efficiently adapted to its surroundings, this is useful, but it is an extremely conservative mechanism that reduces the chance of change. Any alteration in the environment could quickly lead to the extinction of a species. Barry smiled, at a loss. "Nope. Just remembering." Dame Fortune had become so well-disposed to him that he got his third endorsement (though in point of hard fact, his second) the very next night. The fated encounter took place at Morone's One-Stop Shopping, a mom-and-pop mini-grocery on Sixth Ave. right next to the International Supermarket. Although Morone's charged more for most items, Barry preferred shopping there because it offered such a limited and unchallenging range of choices (cold meats, canned goods, beer, Nabisco cookies) that he never felt intimidated and ashamed of his selections at the check-out counter. He hated to cook, but was that any reason he should be made to feel inadequate? Morone's was made to order for people like Barry, of which there are great numbers. "There was no point in getting him involved. It was just an accident." Everyone else in the tavern came running outside too. Sure enough it was Amos, and sure enough a rainbow looped above them to the far horizons. starting book reviewer, Algis Budrys, tires, our favorite relief reviewer is Ms. Russ. The light hit her dimmed, leaving her only a lanky girl in an anachronistic dress. She pulled at a copper lock dangling down over her temple. "There's no need. The courts won't recognize us as separate people. What one does is legally binding on the other." The Almsbury was half a dozen blocks away on Yucca. So I walked. It was a rectangular monolith. If the first trip had been an ordeal, this one was an agony: a frantic thrust through the sultry night on the steaming river, Moises sweating over the throttle as Nolan held Darlene's shuddering shoulders against the straw mattress in the stern of the vibrating launch. They made Manaos by dawn and roused Dr. Robales from slumber at his house near the plaza. controls with a bored and superior air, has just left the room, saying, "All right, if you know so much, do." The back of his shirt was churning. The scream continued, hurting my ears. Rips appeared in the shirt and a small misshapen arm poked out briefly. I could only stare, frozen. The shirt was ripped to shreds. Two arms, a head, a torso came through. The whole thing ripped its way out and fell onto the couch beside the boy. Its face was twisted, tortured, and its mouth kept opening and closing with the screams. Its eyes looked incomprehendingly about. It pulled itself along with its arms, dragging its useless legs, its spine obviously broken. It fell off the couch and flailed about on the floor. . . stop. It was a rectangular monolith about eight stories tall, not real new, not too old, but expensive-looking. The small terraces protruded in neat, orderly rows. The long, narrow grounds were immaculate with a lot of succulents that looked like they might have been imported from Mars. There were also the inevitable palm trees and clumps of bird of paradise. A small, discrete, polished placard dangled in a wrought-iron frame proclaiming, ever so softly, NO VACANCY. . . podium as I talked about cloning. "I don't want to go off into a lot of personal anecdotes and reminiscences. That kind of thing is customary on an occasion such as this, but it would be trivial, and I wouldn't want my last speech as president of NASDO to be marked by trivia. The times do not permit such luxury. Instead, I want to talk about matters that are of global significance and which affect every individual alive on this planet, and indeed the generations yet to be born--assuming there will be future generations." He paused. "I want to talk about survival--the survival of the human species." "Good for you," he said when Amos had climbed onto the deck and given him the glass. Did you know I never went to school?" he said, grinning. "Not a day of my life. I didn't." "Hello, can you hear me now?" "Still, it got you picked for this mission out of hundreds of applicants. The thinking was that you'd be a wild card, a man of action with proven survivability. Maybe it worked out. But the other thing I remember on your card was that you're not a leader. No, that you're a loner who'll cooperate with a group and be no discipline problem, but you work better alone. Want to strike out on your own?" 175. clangs. A tiny white ball came through the doorway and bounced off three walls. It moved almost faster. and came striding out to the car all legs and healthy golden flesh. She was wearing white shorts, sneakers. The inner nest was free-form. The New Amsterdamites had allowed it to stay pretty much the way. "I'm pregnant," she announced to them that night, causing Song to delay her examination of the white fruit. . . And he had had time to think about the problem of whom to save. He went straight to Lou Prager and finished suiting him up. But it was already too late. He didn't know if it would have made any difference if Mary Lang had tried to save him first. . . "Thank you very much," said Amos and walked on till he came to another sailor whose feet were awash in soap suds. The sailor was pushing a mop back and forth so hard that Amos decided he was trying to scrub the last bit of color off the grey boards. "Good evening to you too," said Amos. "I'm exploring the ship and I have very little tune since I'm to be up at four o'clock in the morning. I was told to avoid the brig. So could you point it out to me? I don't want to wander into it by accident." 200
